Summary

Kristen Rosati is a partner in the law firm of Coppersmith Schermer & Brockelman PLC. Her practice concentrates in clinical research, electronic health records, health information privacy and security, and consent issues. Much of her work is at the intersection of these areas, including data sharing in collaborative research, the creation of data warehouses and tissue banks for research, and “secondary” use of health information. She is listed in Best Lawyers in America for health care in 2007 and 2008.

Ms. Rosati is a member of the American Health Lawyers Association (AHLA) Board of Directors, Chairs the AHLA Quality Council, and is immediate past Chair of AHLA’s Health Information and Technology Practice Group. She also chairs the Legal Committee for Arizona Health-e Connection, Arizona’s e-health data exchange initiative, and was a member of the National Governor’s Association State Alliance for e-Health, Health Information Protection Task Force. She chaired the legal work for the Adoption of Standard Policies Collaborative, part of the Health Information Privacy and Security Collaboration (HISPC) funded by the Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology. She is outside General Counsel to eHealth Initiative (eHI) and the Foundation for eHealth Initiative, non-profit affiliated organizations at the cutting edge of health information exchange and health information technology policy. On behalf of eHI, Ms. Rosati has been involved in assisting with the creation of the FDA Sentinel Initiative, an effort to create a national electronic distributed network to monitor medical product safety.

Ms. Rosati is working with Battelle Memorial Institute’s Technology Partnership Practice in the Arizona Translational Resource Network (AzTransNet), an effort by the Arizona Biomedical Research Commission to build clinical and translational research capacity in Arizona. AzTransNet is working to serve the needs of research sites across Arizona’s biomedical community, including developing educational and compliance resources and assisting in the creation of collaborative IRB resources. Ms. Rosati also assisted in the development of Arizona’s Clinical and Translational Science Award (CTSA) grant proposal to NIH. On behalf of the Arizona Hospital and Healthcare Association, she developed a Clinical Research Policies Handbook and the HIPAA Privacy Tool Kit.

Ms. Rosati is a member of the Advisory Board for the Arizona State University (ASU) Biomedical Informatics Department and is on the Executive Committee and Advisory Board for the ASU Center for Health Care Innovation and Clinical Trials. She is also an adjunct professor of law and frequent guest lecturer at ASU. Ms. Rosati lectures nationally on clinical research, electronic health records, and HIPAA and has written numerous articles and book chapters on these issues.

Education and Work History

Ms. Rosati received her B.A., with high honors, and her J.D., cum laude, from the University of Michigan.
